

NHSPA

Nebraska High School Press Association

It is my pleasure to invite all publications advisers to become members or renew his or her membership in the Nebraska High School Press Association.

As members of your state's professional organization for journalism teachers, you can expect to find the support you need personally and professionally to keep up with the demands of your important role within your school community.

No one knows better than your own colleagues at NHSPA how demanding the job of a publications adviser can be. Our volunteer board comprises journalism teachers from across the state with varying years of experience representing schools of all sizes both public and private.

You may feel alone in your own building, but let me assure you that you are not. Let NHSPA help you be the best adviser you can be for your students by bringing them to the Fall Convention on Oct. 17. The sessions we have planned will help novice and advanced students in all areas of scholastic journalism including yearbook, newspaper, online and broadcast.

We have heard it time and time again that just having an opportunity to visit with fellow advisers can be the best solution to any problem you are facing.

Hope to see you in October.

Christine Kaldahl, NBCT, CJE
President, NHSPA
Millard South High School
AP Language and Composition, Intro to Journalism, Newspaper, Educators Rising Club
ckaldahl@mpsomaha.org